MUSCAT: Al Suwadi Power Company (ASPC), which owns and operates the 744MW power generation plant in Barka, worked with the local schools in their community recently to help them set up interactive classrooms and gifted smart electronic boards and projectors, says a press release.

Representatives from ASPC went to Abd Bin Al Julanda Basic Education School in Barka to distribute four smart electronic boards. The school had organised a small function where the gifts were received by Ali Al Jabry, the assistant principal. This was followed by a demonstration session for the teaching faculty by Yasser Taib Al Balushi, the mathematics teacher. The highly-versatile and advanced boards will help students enjoy the learning process as it allows for a more graphical presentation of the curriculum. It enables teachers to impart knowledge in a more scientific, communicative and collaborating manner. Al Suwadi also gifted the projectors for the classrooms of Al Anhal Education School at Barka. The projectors would assist the teachers in displaying information and educational material in a way that catches the attention of the young mind. The gifts were received on behalf of the school by Anhal Al Mawali, assistant principal of Al Anhal Education School who expressed her thanks and praised the company for its support.

"At ASPC, we are committed to working closely and support the needs of our community as part of corporate social responsibility. It is important that education is imparted in a more interactive manner to today's tech-savvy children.

Our effort is a step in that direction. We want our future leaders to benefit from the best that the technology has to offer," said Navneet Kasbekar, chief executive officer of Al Suwadi Power Company.

Al Suwadi sells electrical power to Oman Power and Water Procurement Company under a 15-year power purchase agreement and practices good corporate governance.
